WILL WIN PENNANT FOR YANKEES.

Edna "Banjo" Bennett is a full fledged member of the Yankees. And with Eddie on the job, the Yankees can't lose. "Banjo" modestly says the Yankees already are the champions. One championship in the American League and one in the National League in two years is fair enough. "Banjo" could have won the world's series for the White Sox, too, in 1919, but the filthy crooks threw it on him. Last year "Banjo" won the pennant for Brooklyn, and would have won the world's championship for them had they invested in a half fare ticket to Cleveland.

SONG WEEK FOR SCHOOLS TO BE HELD IN ALASKA

Commissioner Henderson Urges Observance—"Community Sing" Is Suggested.

Suggestions to Superintendents, Principals and Teachers in Alaska schools for observance of National Song Week, February 20-23, have been made by Commissioner of Education L. D. Henderson in a communication recently mailed out from the Commissioner's office in this city. Mr. Henderson suggests that a "community sing" be made a feature of the observance.

The Commissioner stated: "At least a week prior to the receipt of this letter you, no doubt, read an announcement on page 60 of the February issue of Normal Instructor and Primary Plans to the effect that the National Week of Song will soon be upon us. During the past two years, this week has been observed quite generally in the schools of Alaska. It is our desire to make it an annual occurrence. The period is easy to remember in that it always comes during the week in which Washington's birthday occurs. If you have not already begun preparations for the observance of this week in your school and community, will you not do so at once upon receipt of this letter to the end that the week may be a real Week of Song in Alaska.

The announcement referred to contains a list of suggestive patriotic, college, folk and sentimental songs suitable for the week as well as a list of hymns and carols. The principal thing is to select songs which are familiar. The average adult enjoys the old airs, not only because they take him back to childhood but also because they contain real worth. The child enjoys them for the reason that they are songs which make an appeal to something which is innate in every individual.

The following suggestions regarding the observance of the week may be helpful.

1. Secure the co-operation of ministers and arrange for a special song service at least a half hour in length in connection with the Sunday evening church services on February 20.

2. Ask Sunday School Superintendents to make the morning Sunday School period one in which more than usual interest is given to the song service.

3. Stress daily singing in all grades of the school during the week and cause the pupils to feel that 22,000,000 other school children throughout the length and breadth of the United States are joining with them in this song fest.

4. Secure the co-operation of newspapers. Prepare or cause to be prepared daily articles setting forth the history of some of our most familiar songs and present the same for publication.

5. Arrange for a "community sing" to be held on some night during the week, preferably near its close. A high school glee club or children's chorus will be of assistance to the chorus leader. Variety may be introduced by arranging for a few special numbers by soloists, quartettes, etc. This "community sing" should be the big event of the week. Organize for it. Get the community behind it.

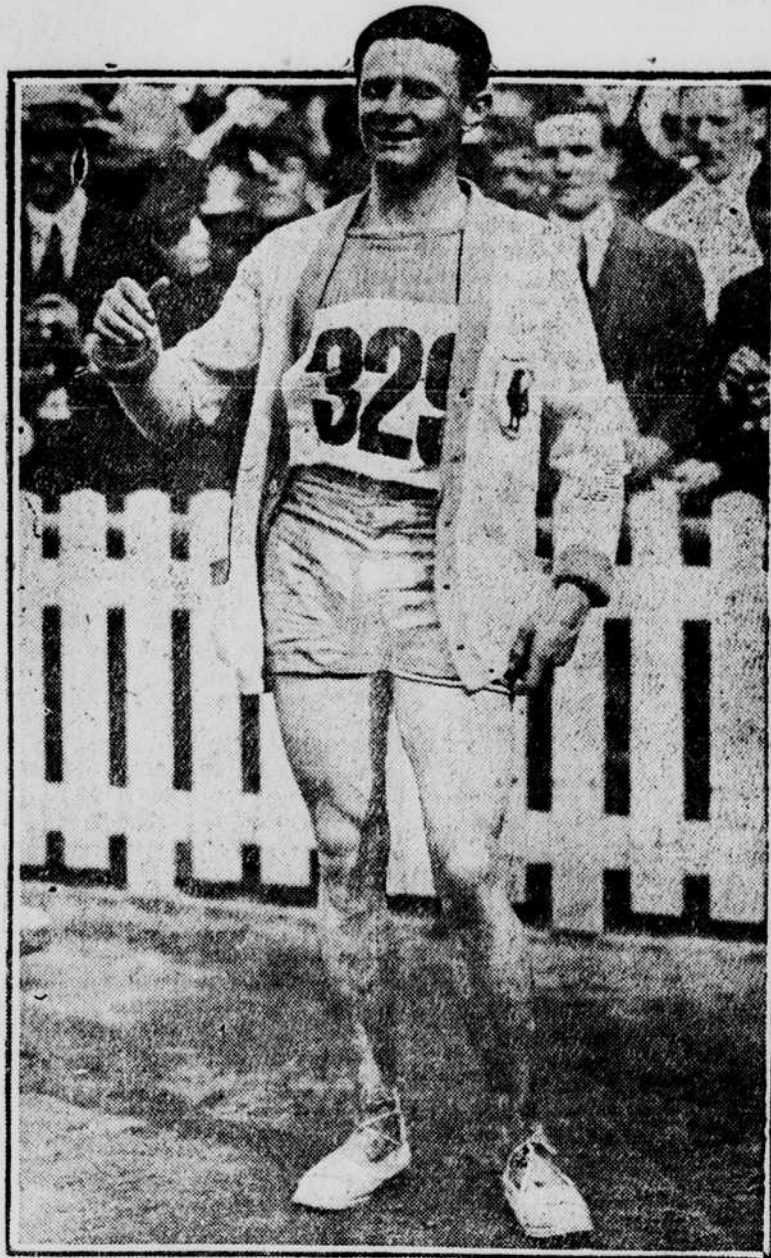

6. Secure the active co-operation and assistance of all music lovers in the community. The function of the school is to provide the opportunity. The event is for the school and the whole community.

GAME SLAUGHTER ENORMOUS, SAYS DELEGATE - ELECT

Sutherland Addresses Conservationists on Alaskan Game Conditions.

In Alaska, game is being slaughtered in great numbers and offenders have become so confident they will go unpunished that they practice their illegal killing openly. It is a statement credited to Delegate-elect Dan A. Sutherland by the New York Tribune in its description of a speech made by Mr. Sutherland at a luncheon given him by game conservation and protective societies in New York on January 21, last. Mr. Sutherland urged that scores of additional game wardens be added to the present force to curb law breakers in the Territory.

The Tribune's account of the luncheon follows:

The urgent need for increased funds with which to enforce the law if the big game of Alaska is to be saved from extinction was discussed yesterday at a luncheon of the Bankers' Club given in honor of Daniel A. Sutherland, Delegate to Congress from Alaska.

Representatives of several game conservation and protective organizations attended the luncheon and pledged themselves to campaign for immediate action by Congress on legislation advocated by Mr. Sutherland. The Delegate from Alaska spoke of the constant inroads being made on the wild life of his Territory and explained this was not because of a lack of conservation laws. Rather, he said, it was due to a failure to enforce such regulations.

Only a Few Wardens.

In all Alaska, it was pointed out by the speaker, there are only about a dozen game wardens, and it is impossible for them to patrol such a vast territory with any effect. Game is being slaughtered in great numbers and offenders have become so confident they will go unpunished that they practice their illegal killing openly.

Mining and canning interests, it was declared, are most flagrant offenders. Their employees in some instances number thousands and are fed on slaughtered game. They even have been known, it was said, to carry meat out of the Territory when they leave at the end of their working season.

Scores of additional game wardens will be required to hold these lawbreakers in check, and Congress will be asked early in its session to take the necessary steps in that direction. The territory now holds virtually all of the big game to be found in United States territory.

Support Is Pledged.

Among those who pledged themselves to support the conservation movement were:

William N. Beach and Belmore Browne, Camp Fire Club of America; Henry E. Armstrong, New York Times; William Edward Coffin, Camp Fire Club; W. Redmond Cross, Morgan Davis and Charles Stewart Davison, Boone and Crockett Club; A. Barton Hepburn, William T. Hornaday, Frederick C. Walcott and Clark Williams, Wild Life Protection Fund; Marshall McLean, Camp Fire Club; T. Gilbert Pearson, president of the National Association of Audubon Societies; Geo. D. Pratt, New York State Conservation Commission; G. Vernon Rogers, The New York Tribune; Edmund Seymour, president of the American Bison Society; Julius H. Seymour, Camp Fire Club; Eltinge P. Warner and Hy. S. Watson, Field and Stream; J. Walter Wood, Boone and Crockett Club.

ALSTROM STORE ROBBED, FOUR DOLLARS STOLEN

Effecting entry to the building by smashing a glass of a side window, a burglar robbed the cigar store of Frank L. Alstrom, on Lower Front Street, of four dollars in nickels and dimes, early today.

Upon coming on shift this morning Mr. Alstrom found broken glass scattered over the floor from the shattered window and the drawer of the register open and the money gone. Nothing else had been taken and the thief while climbing through the window passed right by a small safe that was not molested.

The robbery was reported to Chief of Police T. E. P. Keegan this morning, who made an examination of the premises. He declared that it was the work of amateurs.
